DISSE project, sharing economy and our partner meeting in Poland!

If you have been with us for a while, you know that DISSE is a collaborative effort between six partner organizations in Italy, Spain, Turkey, Poland and Sweden. Over the past two years that the project has been active, we have been dedicated to exploring the potential of digital storytelling as a powerful tool for promoting and enhancing sharing economy. You can now see our modules on sharing economy with information that will empower individuals to engage in the sharing economy in a sustainable and meaningful way as well as list of tools and resources to promote Sharing Economy.

Our partners have been working hard on our second project result “Storytelling Classrooms Toolkit” and we are happy to say that it is now available online for you to see! This is a helpful guide for teachers or educators to help them through the process of teaching students about sharing economy. It is very visual and aimed to be easy to use and understand by all educators, so use these and share them with other educators that these modules might be useful for.

The DISSE consortium has held their final face-to-face meeting hosted by our partners in Poland. It was a very positive event where we discussed the final steps of the project, shared insights, and made important decisions for the project's completion.

This meeting marked a significant moment in our project's journey, as we come closer to wrapping up our work. However, all of the project results will be available in our webpage linked below, even after the closing of our project, so you are still in time to look at them and download them!

Thank you for your continued support and interest in our project. Have a look at the project website and our social media to know more about DISSE and how to use Digital Storytelling to promote sharing economy. .
